Compromised node detection in MIMO with increased security – Published in IEEE(ICECA) journal(INSPEC Accession Number: 18144807)
In this research, I have gone through the security domain in MIMO and developed 2 security algorithms for path selection during transmission. These algorithms are made to avoid attacks from hackers by making the path unpredictable/ less predictable thus increasing the security of data transferred and saving it from the potential threat and also detecting the compromised node and thereby removing it from the transmission path
