

ABOUT ME

Through my family, I have always been a fan of literature and the genre of books that I read vary from classics to poetry to fantasy and romance novels. I have written and still writing novels of my own because words are the only way that I express myself. I have always been told that I have a pleasant and safe disposition that makes people warm up to me. I do admit that I love smiling because it's the easiest and the most enjoyable thing to do. Factualness has been incorporated in me as a Humanities Masters student with research leading my life for the past two years. I can boast of having collaborative skills with teamwork experience, whether it be in a project or a committee throughout my educational background. Global values, diversity, inclusion and acceptance is the multicultural competencies I have garnered till now like openness, acceptance and celebration of every culture. Discipline, while being a difficult habit to maintain, makes me grow as we live out this lockdown.
